For one week in late October, Cape Town will be one of the greenest business cities on Earth

UNEP joins City of Cape Town and partners to announce Cape Town Green Week (October 19-23, 2009)

Cape Town/Nairobi/Geneva, 13 August 2009 - For one week in late October, Cape Town will become one of the greenest business cities on Earth as the City of Cape Town joins hands with the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) and a range of partner organizations for an action-packed Green Week.

One of the main events of the week will be the first-ever Global Roundtable in Africa at the Cape Town International Convention Centre on 22-23 October 2009. The Roundtable is organized by UNEP’s Financial Initiative, the largest and oldest partnership between the UN system and the world of banking, insurance and investment.

Hundreds of financiers, investors, business leaders, built environment and property professionals from around the world and across Africa, joined by green groups, will gather at the Convention Centre (October 19-23) for a week-long series of events exploring how a green approach to business can create jobs, protect the environment and build better, fairer communities with towns and cities that work.

Partnering organizations supporting Cape Town Green Week include: the City of Cape Town; the United Nations Environment Programme Finance Initiative (UNEP FI); The Cape Town Partnership; Banking Association of South Africa (BASA); Green Building Council South Africa (GBCSA); Africa investor (Ai); Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP), National Business Initiative (NBI); and Cape Town International Convention Centre (CTICC). Other organizations and initiatives are welcome to back Cape Town Green Week.

Climate Change: Cape Town to Copenhagen

Cape Town’s Green Week will put the City at the centre of the global green business revolution just six weeks ahead of a crucial United Nations Climate Change summit in Denmark, when the governments of the world will attempt to negotiate a new agreement for reducing greenhouse gas emissions. Cape Town Green Week will also enable African finance, business, civil society and green groups to send a strong message, calling for action, to the historic UN gathering in Copenhagen.

Achim Steiner, United Nations Under Secretary General and Executive Director of UNEP congratulated the organizations behind the initiative: "This initiative captures the very essence of the needed transformation to a smart, low-carbon, clean “green” economy that generates jobs and better services for communities in Africa and across the planet.

"UNEP and its 180 partner organizations drawn from across financial services are delighted to be part of an initiative driven by such South African leadership. Dynamic cross sector initiatives like these will help us 'Seal the Deal' in Copenhagen" the UN environmental head added.

Piet Van Zyl, Executive Director of Strategy and Planning at the City of Cape Town commented: "As a green pioneer city in Africa, Cape Town is honoured to host this important cluster of “green” events in October. Cape Town is a leading global destination for sustainability-related events and tourism, and we are encouraged to see how the business world is taking green issues on board. During that week the City will be launching green building guidelines which will guide resource efficiency improvements in new and existing buildings, and help build a low carbon future for Cape Town."

Cas Coovadia, Managing Director of the Banking Association of South Africa and Chair of UNEP FI's African Task Force for the past seven years, said: "This is a remarkable alignment of green events and business action in Cape Town. It will also enable the City to highlight the impressive steps it is taking to address the sustainable development agenda at a time when we have guests, including hundreds of senior financiers, from around the world".

Rashid Toefy, Chief Executive Officer of the Cape Town International Convention Centre (CTICC) said "As a leading international convention centre that is committed to transforming the events industry to one that is socially, economically and environmentally sustainable, CTICC is proud to be associated with Cape Town Green Week.
